The REHIS Intermediate Train the Presenter course is for anyone who wants to develop practical training skills and/or meet the minimum training requirement for applying to become a REHIS Approved Presenter. Ideally, candidates attending this course already have achieved or are working towards the Diploma in Advanced Food Hygiene (or equivalent) or Health and Safety qualification.

The course will be delivered over the 2 days with a further 1 day for assessment which will take the form of a short written test and practical delivery where the candidate will need to plan and deliver a 'mini' course. The aim is to provide candidates with a sound knowledge of training and presentation skills in order to be effective REHIS course Presenters. Those who pass the assessment receive REHIS Intermediate Train the Presenter Certificate.
